Occupational & Environmental Health Network (OEHN) Launches New Occupational Health Consulting Division

Marlborough, MA, -- December 20, 2010 – Occupational & Environmental Health Network, Inc. (OEHN) announced today a new division which is focused on operations and clinical consulting for hospital based occupational health departments. This new division delivers a comprehensive portfolio of consulting services.

“OEHN has a proven track record and strong brand recognition across the occupational health industry. Our entry into occupation health consulting provides the hospital segment with a confirmed industry leader,” said Joe Flynn, Chief Operations Officer for OEHN.

This announcement constitutes a key step in accelerating OEHN’s growth initiatives for the year 2011 and beyond. OEHN’s new consulting division provides financial, operations, productivity, organizational design, workers compensation and work-flow analysis reviews for medium and large hospital systems nationally. The company recently completed consulting reviews for three major hospitals within the Boston, MA market. OEHN also provides consulting services for research bio-safety laboratory programs across the country.

“Our consulting team has significant experience within the occupational health industry across the operations and clinical functions. Occupational health is a specialized area of medicine. In the end, our client value model reduces risk, improves the bottom line, delivers thought leadership and builds a strong clinical and operational blueprint for our served market,” said Flynn.
